NewsCurrents poll gets it right again: Users correctly predicted Trump victory...in October!

MADISON, WISCONSIN:

Donald Trump's victory in the presidential election was a surprise to pundits, pollsters, and political experts all over the political spectrum.

But at least one poll predicted Trump's stunning victory in the Electoral College. Even though most of its respondents cannot vote yet, the NewsCurrents Presidential Election Poll has been correct about every presidential election since it began in 1984...and this year was no exception.

In September, NewsCurrents Online asked users, "Who should be the next president of the United States?" Votes were due by October 7th, and the results were published in the October 17th issue of NewsCurrents Online.

Donald Trump won the 2016 NewsCurrents Presidential Election Poll with 40% of the total vote. Hillary Clinton finished a close second, at 37%, followed by Jill Stein at 12% and Gary Johnson at 6%. Five percent chose "undecided."

NewsCurrents Online is an award-winning weekly current events discussion program published by Knowledge Unlimited, Inc. This program is used in K-12 schools, correctional schools, and senior facilities around the U.S. The program is designed to boost literacy, critical thinking, and background knowledge among its users.

"We're very proud of the civic engagement demonstrated by the voters in this poll," said Judith Laitman, publisher of NewsCurrents. "Our poll is unscientific, but our record of accuracy speaks for itself."
